Death from Violence.

John Merinder, a sailor, died in this city last night, from the effects of a blow inflicted upon him on the 5th instant by Captain John Powell, of the schooner Patrick Henry. On the 14th instant, Justice J. L. Smith reterved information that Merinder was lying ill at his home near the Capitol, from the effects of a blow he had received. He thereupon went to his house, and saw Merinder, whom he did not consider dangerously ill, but neverbeless took his affidavit respecting the affair. pon this he caused Captain Powell and several of the crew of the Patrick Henry to aplear before him, and placed the former upon his trial for the alleged offence. The concurrent testimony was to the effect, that while the schooner lay off White Point, in the Potomac river, near the Virginia shore, about ninety miles below this city, on the 8th instant, after some cross words between Capt. Powell and Merinder, the former walked toward the cabin door; that Merinder called after him and said-"then you don't want me any more?" that Powell stopped, and said, Yes, John, I do want you, if you'll do right; that words followed, ending in Merinder's callthe arrival of the schooner at this port Merin-
